

Eighty Five

THROUGH THE TIMES OF 85

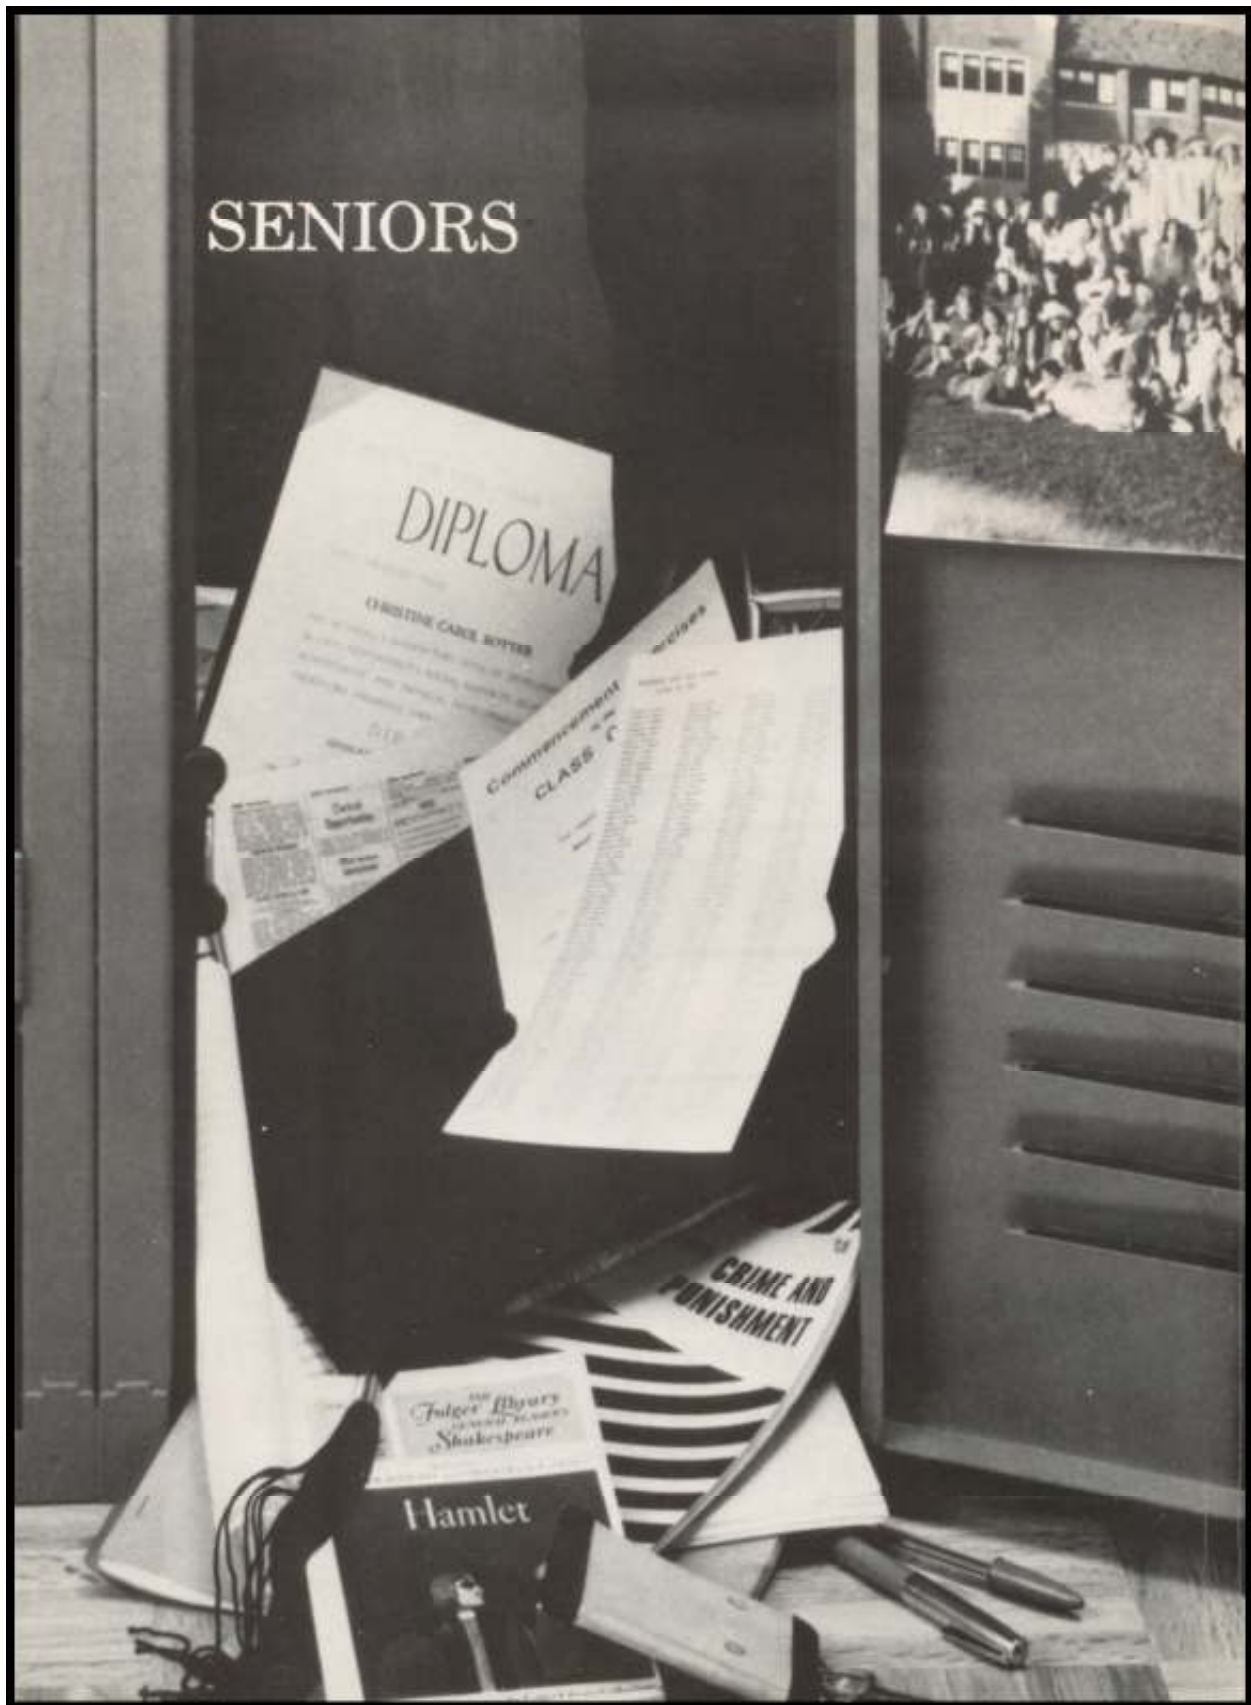

Dedication

We, the Senior Class of 1985, would like to dedicate this annual to our teacher and friend, Mr. Noel Schmidt. His assistance and inspiration have been of benefit to us all.

Senior Class Prophecy

The year is 2005 and I am making my way back to my 20 year class reunion. Trina Fisher, President of the Reunion Committee, has set up an olympics as this years entertainment. As I make my way into the metropolis, I am overshadowed by the immenseness of the only skyscraper in Bode. Approaching the edifice my eyes focus on the gold slated title which reads "The Miller Hotel," and the proprietor is none other than Vicky Miller. I move on toward the field and happen to gaze in my mirror and I see a Harley Gang approaching my car. The leader is my old classmate Chad Struthers. I asked Chad how he was surviving and he replied that he had opened a gift shop in Ottosen and business was booming.

As the opening ceremonies of the games begin, I find my true reason for being at the games—I have been asked to sing the National Anthem. Along with the anthem, I will sing my debut song "Ribbons Down My Back."

The events now begin. The first event is a new event to come to the Olympics. It is called "Run for Mother." The race is run with one show off and was perfected by John Schenone. John was so happy after winning the race he exclaimed, "I finally get my name in the paper!"

I just heard bad news. Jim "Ohoto" Berte had to be rushed to Olympic nurse Shelia Winterton when he suffered from a massive coronary after calling the Vietnamese shot putter a "gook". Jim is said to be in stable condition now.

Now it is time for a commercial break and who might I see on the T.V. monitor but Deb Betz advertising her newly published book "How to Become a Blonde, Bronzed, Beauty in Ten Easy Steps."

The next commercial we see Todd Bradley advertising bombs, camouflage clothing, and dynamite to help save struggling English students from the detention hall of Noel Schmidt.

And now a word with our sponsors. As I headed over to talk with Arthur Hampe Jr. of Bode Lumber Yard I see him heading south, Ankeny bound, to get a little lumber.

Next we would also like to recognize the designer of the participants uniforms, Shawanna Krause.

As I glance over the crowd for familiar faces, I try to spot my friend Amy Hanson. I asked Jim Berte, the stabilized patient, if he had seen Amy and he replied, "She thought there was a test today so she skipped out."

Blaine Telford, zoologist at L.S.U., will now challenge the impossible. He will attempt to jump over Cindy Sawyer and her 27 youngsters by the means of only a motorcycle.

Fighting for the gold in the shot put are Theresa Christensen and Carol Smith. After Carol got into a fight with a Humboldt participant she was asked if she was worried that the judges might disqualify her, and she replied, "What are they going to do, take away my birthday?"

In wrapping up the ceremonies I hear Mike Kraft playing his trombone and Wayne Monson will do his rendition of the Fox Trot.

Senior Class Will

We, the Seniors of TR, 1985 edition, being of several states of mind, and more-or-less sound bodies, in recognition of past accomplishments, shared experiences, and various strange occurrences, do hereby establish and publish the following First Will and Testament.

I, Carol Smith, leave to Ronna the ability to act wierdly stupid without being quite so noticeable! To Becky and Michelle myself as their personal bodyguard!

I, Trina Fisher, bequeath to Sheila Winterton the ability to get out and party more. Also, to Jim Berte the ability not to get tied down to his seat.

I, Theresa Christensen, transmit free and clear to Shawwna Krause the ability to eat faster so you're not late for class, and to Doug Newell the ability to do his own work.

I, Deb Betz, leave to Amy Hanson the ability to put the worm on the hook myself when fishing and to Sue Underberg, a dozen eggs, so she can have some fun in Humboldt.

I, Blaine Telford, give to whomever needs it, my place on the park bench uptown, but you must bring your own blanket. And to Mr. R.C. Moore, a blow up doll of me saying, "I didn't do it! I was mentally ill and Deny Everything!"

I, Vicky Miller, bequeath to Shelli Klocko the ability not to get grounded when she comes home late. Also to Shawwna Krause the ability to grub up more.

I, Amy Hanson, will to John Schenone one of my shoes, so if he loses one he'll have one to wear home to his mother. To Barb Davis, my ability to think.

I, Cindy Zeman, will to Ronna Frederick my track animal shirt and to my brother, Matt, a pair of my jeans so he doesn't have to wear Janelle's.

I, Art Hampe, leave to Blaine Telford the ability to tell a lie and make it sound truthful, and to Jim Berte a baby seat for all his dates.

I, Todd Bradley, leave Blaine a portable movie camera so he can film all of his feats while on his motorcycle and I leave Jerry Steil the ability to go out with a girl and remember her name the next day.

I, John Schenone, will the following: To Jim Berte a real car so he doesn't have to "paper ear" and to Amy Hanson my shoe I lost on Main Street on a night a long time ago.

I, Sheila Winterton, bequeath the following to Shawwna Krause, the ability to be able to get your homework done on time, and to Kim Kiley the ability to pick up slips on the right hour.

I, Mike Kraft, will the following to Jim Berte, a lifetime subscription to Ebony Magazine. And to Blaine, a bed so he won't have to sleep on benches uptown.

I, Jacque Ludwig, will to Blaine Telford the ability to drive slower, and to George Struthers the ability to get his hair cut and turn his mind around.

I, Shawwna Krause, leave to Trina Fisher the ability to go out and not get caught. Also, to Theresa Christensen the ability not to drop things in the grocery store and to Cindy Hulsrud to shop for things she doesn't need.

I, Dawn Zittritsch, will to Theresa Christensen the ability to stick it out in track for a season.

I, Wayne Monson, leave to Chad Struthers a new pair of work shoes and to Todd Bradley a new pair of tires.
